New events for young people

Charlie Yule, from Kids Club, is working on launching a Youth Club at the Hub in the coming months. Aimed at young people aged 13-17, the club will run a range of activities such as pizza making, bowling, movie nights, and sports events as well as regular hang outs at the Hub. If you'd like to get involved in setting up or running the Youth Club please get in touch.

A Family Film Club is also on the way. Running predominantly as part of the youth club, the film club will also run regular screenings of popular titles as well as some older classics.

Watch this space for updates!

Finally, a series of Young Writers Workshops are coming to the village later in the year.

Run by a team of qualified tutors and published authors, the workshops will be open to young people aged 12 and above with an interest in creative writing. Please contact Charlie for more information.

St Margaret's Church, Heveningham with Ubbeston

Since our Harvest Festival in October St Margaret's Church has had a busy time. Volunteers finished strimming the churchyard and we then held a remembrance service which was well supported by a large congregation. Our Christmas Carol service this year was very special and was bathed in candlelight.

We would like to let everyone know that we are now open every day from 10am to dusk and welcome anyone who would like to visit or just come along and sit quietly inside our beautiful church. We are now looking forward to the spring and can already see the various bulbs, snowdrops and primroses coming up through the grass surrounding the Church.

Our next Service will be held Sunday 12th February at 10am.

Kids Club

It's been a busy few months at Kids Club. Our Christmas party was a great success and thanks to the Co-op's continued support we were able to give each child a Christmas hamper to share with their families. We then kicked off the New Year with biscuit icing and winter games, where the children had great fun completing the team challenges.

We are beginning work on an exciting George and the Dragon play which we hope to be able to perform for parents and members of the public later on in Spring. More details to follow soon!

Kids club is open to all children aged 5-12. We meet every other Friday, 4-5.30pm in the Hub. £1 per child, snacks and drinks provided.

Huntingfield Town Estate Trust

Many town and village communities have charities to help with financial hardship. We are fortunate, especially at this difficult and anxious time, that Huntingfield is one of those able to give assistance to individuals and families living in the parish via the Town Estate Trust & Education Foundation. Grants towards household costs and also school and college costs such as uniforms, school trips and further education courses are available.

If you need help you can firstly talk with one of the Trustees:
Sheila Freeman, 1 The Street 01986 798774
Rev Linda Berry, The Old Post Office 01986 798165
Sue Brewer, 1 Malt Cottages 01986 798169

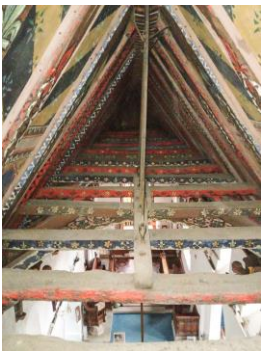

All applications must be followed by a request in writing and this will be treated with the utmost confidence.

The bells, the bells...

About this time last year, we were in the church and Brian Lucas said, "I have got to oil the bells. Do you want to see how it's done?" Always inquisitive and happy to go up the tower I, of course, said yes. We went up the tower, Brian instructed me and the job was done. When we got down, he informed me that he was now too old to go up and down the tower and I was now the 'Oiler in Chief'.

This year I needed a young helper and, luckily, Paul was on hand and keen, not only to go up the tower but also to get out onto the tower roof.

The first stage upwards is a flight of stone steps. These are steep, narrow and dusty. At the top of these is the lower bell tower which has the bell ropes going up through it in wooden guides and a wooden door opening out high up over the font.

From this you get a really different view of the interior of the church. On this wooden door are the signatures of many of the people who have climbed the tower over the past 200 years.

From the lower chamber a long wooden ladder leads up through a wooden hatch to the chamber containing the bells. It's a surprisingly light and airy room but to move around you have to clamber over the wooden frame holding the bells. Each bell has two metal reservoirs containing a wad of cotton wool onto which the oil is poured.

From the bell chamber a rickety ladder leads to a leaded wooden hatch and out onto the roof. This hatch is very heavy, hence the need of a young helper. The day we went up was cold and sunny. The views were stunning. It becomes obvious that the church sits in a valley with views stretching from Cratfield across to Heveningham. The gardens of Holland House look particularly gorgeous. With a storm on the horizon, giving us the benefit of a double rainbow, we decided to make our cautious way down. I am not sure when to break it to Paul that he is now 'Oiler in Chief'.

Notes from the sheep pen..

As in previous years, this is a quiet time in our pen: our pregnancies are ticking along with six weeks to go for most of us. However, you may remember that the team had a rush of blood to the head and put a small group (200) with the rams much earlier - they are due to lamb from 1st Feb. You may wonder why? A few reasons: there are some buildings where the team live which are suitable for lambing inside, all of them are itching to get started after the long winter (I know, but you have to understand they do love it!) and it will also give old floppy hat something to market whilst the spring trade is still buoyant.

We have been spread far and wide this winter, mainly due to the lack of feed (both grass and stubble turnips) due to last year's drought. We have ventured as far as Wiltshire, Oxfordshire, Hertfordshire and, of course, Essex. These farms have areas predominantly of grass that is used for other purposes during the summer months, e.g., making hay for race horses, music festivals etc, and need to be grazed to leave the land in a good position for the coming year's activities. Any necessary 'looking' is done by local people, with periodical visits from this end just to keep an eye on us. We will all be back in time for lambing which has been put back by 5 days in the hope that spring will have arrived as the pattern of the last few years has seen dreadful weather persisting until early April. You wait and see, I bet this year it will be glorious from late March! Then we can call them 'Silly Billy's' or something similar!

A group of last spring's lambs have suffered with "Scald", a painful foot complaint brought on by lush autumn grass and frost. They were foot bathed twice a day for a week in a Zinc Sulphate solution and recovered really well, but oh, did the extra work involved test the team's resolve! Stomach worms have also been an ongoing problem that has needed routine treatment - a bigger issue than it has been for some years. Without treatment we become un-thrifty and susceptible to many other complaints that are often, for us being sheep, terminal!

Baa to you all, Ewe

... and the cowshed

Moo to all

The boss was very pleased that we all passed our TB test last month. Also, the boyfriends have done their job so, hopefully, we are all safely back in calf which Lucy will confirm when she has done the ultra-sound pregnancy testing. Winter feed has been at a premium this year, with the fodder beet very small. Luckily, the team conserved enough silage for our consumption, just in case.

We were shocked when old floppy hat told us of the arson incident at Sibton, where they think three teenagers set fire to a stack of 170+ tons of straw which was destined for our use. Fortunately, the team can source replacements from the home farm in Essex. Nevertheless, it was very distressing for all and the clearing up will be time consuming.

Many livestock pundits are predicting a good year for beef consumption, but, as yet, it hasn't been reflected in any price increase! We are very much the poor relation at this time of year as Ewe takes most of the attention in the lead up to lambing.

So, friends, it's a moo from me for now. Pat

Guss & Penny

Hi folks!

Let us introduce ourselves: we are a Guus and Penny, a boyfriend-girlfriend team of border collies who work the sheep on the estate, one of us better than the other! Penny has a unique ability to catch sheep on instruction from Lucy, which is only rarely seen in other dogs. Guss, on the other hand, is fast and very obedient – a characteristic that is essential (the obedient thing) in the countryside.

We are great mates, constantly playing (apparently “like a pair of tarts”) and running about the farmyard until either David or Lucy decide that some proper work needs to be done. During our downtime we live happily in adjoining kennels. However, at night when we love to start all sorts of singing, the bosses say it's really funny - as long as you're not wanting to sleep! We have had Lucy's husband come down with a pail of water to give us a cold shower, which usually works. If this fails poor Penny has been banned to the cage in the truck until the morning.

We are of an age that nothing bothers us much, apart from the postman and any strangers who so much as come near the house! We have a love/hate relationship with the resident feral cats: neither of us is boss, but woe betide the cats if they make a dash for it!

The other resident dogs on the estate are three more working Border Collies. Jake is the senior male with his two daughters, Jazz and Jet. Jet is 6 months and just started her training while the other two are becoming very accomplished: they were recently invited to take part in a sheepdog trial in North Wales.

Hope you enjoyed something a little different? The boss man may even allow us to drop by now and again!

Nature Notes

At the time of writing our weather, having recently been frosty, has warmed a little and some flowers, including Snowdrops and Aconites are coming into bloom. Other bulbs are pushing up through the earth so although we are still in winter some signs of warmer times are in evidence.

Having said that, winter visitors to our parish from much colder climes are still with us, including two members of the thrush family, the Redwing and the Fieldfare which flew across the North Sea from Scandinavia or even further east, as have some other birds.

A party of seven Goosander, a species of sawbill duck, including three striking drakes have been spotted on the Heveningham Hall lake. They breed in holes in trees, and although small numbers breed in the UK, it is likely that these birds came from Northern Europe or even as far away as Russia or Iceland.

Also seen around the lake have been several pairs of Egyptian Geese, although they haven't flown here from Egypt! This attractive species has established as a UK breeding bird from escapees originally kept in wildfowl collections in the 18th century. They also breed in tree cavities that are usually quite high and the poor, freshly hatched goslings have to jump from a considerable height to the ground before they can fly. They start breeding early in the year as do our native Tawny Owls so listen out after dark for their familiar 'tweet twoo' calls.

Also, if you are driving after dark at the moment, you may spot moths fluttering across the road. These are likely to be Winter Moths, a species amongst others that can function well in the winter due to having a kind of antifreeze within its body. It's based on alcohol which is something us humans also use to keep out the cold!

Weather report: December 2022 - January 2023

A new year has started and the weather always does something new, or repeats something it hasn't done in a while, not least the night of the 22nd January when the temperature dropped to -9.8c in Santon Downham (the coldest night since 2013) and -8.4c at London Heathrow (coldest since 2010). In Huntingfield, being closer to the coast, the lowest I've recorded is -6.2c on the 17th Jan. I think the lowest I've ever recorded was around -14c but that was many years ago!

	2021	2022	Diff Inches	Diff mm
Dec	2.78	2.55	-0.23	-5.89
Jan22 & 23	0.90	2.12	1.22	31.04
Totals	3.68	4.67	0.99	25.15

So, for something completely different, rain. I'll begin with last year and no, it wasn't the driest I've recorded despite a very dry summer. The total was 22.8" (579.11mm) but that was 3.49" (88.65mm) below the yearly average since 1991. The last 4 months of 2022 saw 13.22" (338.3mm) fall, which helped make up for some of the deficit. For December '22 and January '23, there was 4.67" (118.6mm) of rain compared with the same months in '21 and '22 when there was 3.68" (93.47mm), so nearly an inch more this year.

So far this year we have a wetter winter, but more rain would be welcome to top up the aquifers and reservoirs. At the moment there is a very high-pressure anticyclone (1038.1 Hpa) centered close to us in the east thus preventing eastward progress of warmer Atlantic weather and associated rain.

Petanque

At the time of writing, we have one Winter Season game left which will take place this Sunday (29th Jan). We have had a good season and are currently 2nd in the table. Despite the, often freezing, conditions it has once again been enjoyable.

Registration for the Summer Season is complete. The captains meeting takes place 16th February when I will find out who our opponents will be. I have also entered the Ladies Pairs for the 2nd year with my partner being the captain of the Eye Sinners team.

Before the start of the summer season, we plan to do a little work on the piste. I have also asked the Millennium Green Trustees if we can erect a shelter with seating and storage. Although I have applied for a grant, we may also need to raise some funds for this. Watch this space for further updates.

History Corner

In 1949, Scottish born brothers, Archibald [Archie] and Hamilton [Hami] Knox left their native land and their parents' farm and travelled to Suffolk with forty milk cows, one bull, two horses, two tractors and various farm implements. All these animals and machinery filled the train so the brothers, along with their cousin, Willie Knox, slept in one of the horse boxes.

The adventure for these three young men had started in 1948, when brothers, Archie, Hami and an older sibling were working on their father's rented farm near Summerston, Scotland, which is now part of Glasgow but was then a separate village. Their dream was to buy their own farms but saw little chance in post war Scotland where renting was the norm. So, they drove to East Anglia to look at the land. Archie was impressed by the level ground, quite different from their hilly farm and the following year he bought 200 acres in Laxfield with his brother, Hami with money inherited from their parents. Apparently English farmers were reluctant to buy after WW2, not wanting to risk their money as some had done after WW1.

The move began by driving the cattle about three miles to Summerston Station, on a single track line running from Kirkintillock to Glasgow and arriving at 10pm. All the occupants slept until early morning, when the 40 cows needed to be milked and all the animals watered. The next major stop in Newcastle saw the animals leave the train for exercise and drink but one of the horses proved to be very difficult to get back in its box and lost his freedom for the journey. They continued in a similar vein, stopping in York, Whitmoor in the Fens until they reached the Mid Suffolk Light Railway line for the final leg to Laxfield. Archie, in his memoirs describes the line:

The Laxfield line was a single track, across country... There were two men, the driver and guard. The driver opened the gates to let the train through and the guard closed them after the train went – a slow process.

This description echoes the one written by Peter Paye in his book 'The Mid-Suffolk Light Railway':
Schoolchildren were permitted to open and close the level crossing gates for the passage of the train and often received a penny reward from the driver or guard. Trains stopped midway between stations so that the train crew could pick mushrooms or vegetables from fields alongside the track, and a certain driver with his shotgun often took aim at rabbits or pheasants whilst on the move, and stopped to pick up the trophies on the return run.

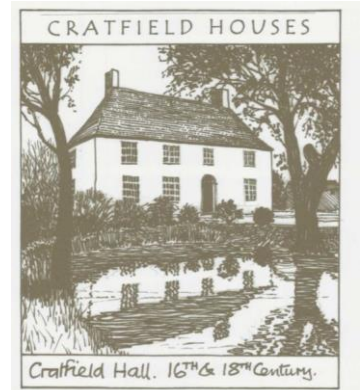

On arrival they had a two mile trek with all the animals and equipment to reach their final destination, Blue House Farm, when a new challenge presented itself – the language! Archie, Hami and Willie had to learn the byre was now the neathouse, the grape was in fact a four-tine fork, the 'stackcover', the tilt and a horse cart was a tumbrel.

The brothers farmed together until they both married and Archie moved to a neighbouring farm in Cratfield. Sixty-one years later, Archie Knox retired from Cratfield Hall Farm and passed it to his son. Hami continued at Blue House Farm, also passing his land and property to his son. The dream of owning their own farms was fulfilled in Suffolk for the two brothers and their families. The gloomy prophecies, which their Scottish family and friends had uttered when they left their homeland, have been truly dispelled.

(Based on the short memoir written by Archie Knox in March 2011, How I came to be here.). This story features in Laxfield & District's display on the Middy.

The museum is open from 2-5pm every Saturday, Sunday and Bank Holiday until the end of October. Also on Laxfield Community Market days from 10am-1pm.

Save the Date

David and Sally are holding a 'Summer's Evening' Garden Party on Saturday 10th June to which you are all invited so please 'Save the date'.

More details to follow.

Your Parish Council

Ubbeston Parish Council

The Parish Council held its first meeting of 2023 in January. The precept has been applied for with no great increase to the residents. The Quiet Lane signs have now been installed on Low Road. These indicate to all road users that the road is regularly used by walkers, cyclists and horses, so please slow down!

We have been lucky to have the ANPR (Automatic Number Plate Recognition) team in the village recently: hopefully you are not one to have received a letter! It will be very interesting to see the resulting data.

The next meeting will be 13th March at 7pm in the Hub. We would love to see you attend. Agendas and minutes can be found on the website, ubbeston.onesuffolk.net.

Heveningham Parish Council

At the time of writing the Parish Council has not held its first meeting of 2023. However, we did have a meeting on the 4th January with County Councillor, Stephen Burroughes and Community Liaison Engineer, Wayne Saunders from Suffolk Highways. There were 18 residents in attendance who had a chance to raise their concerns about highway issues. The Parish Council will now take forward their ideas to the next meeting and set out a plan going forward. The main problem, as we know, is lack of finance for the work that is required around the area in general. The good news is that signs specifying "Unsuitable for HGV'S" are on order and will, hopefully, be installed by the end of the month.

Work continues on Bell Meadow, and before long progress should be in evidence. Meetings are held on the last Wednesday every other month at the Hub, so please come along and have your say. Meeting dates, agendas and minutes are on the website, heveningham.onesuffolk.net.

Church Chat

Happy New Year everyone. I can't believe that we are already close to the end of January. At least the afternoons are getting a little longer.

The Aurora Consort performance was lovely (see below) along with the Carol Service which was also super. There was lots of local support, including many children who did really well. Chris Bracewell played beautifully along with most of the Laxfield Choir whose performance made us all feel very festive. The following Sunday service was also well attended especially considering the freezing weather.

We already have three weddings booked for this year and lots of events are planned so keep a look out in the Hare and on our noticeboard. Also, if you know anyone who is unable to come to Church but would like to take Communion, please let myself or Dominic know.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank Jane and her family for being there when my lovely dog Jasper stood on the central locking button, locking himself and my phone in the caragain. They were able to call my home so I could be rescued. Thank you!
Emma Ward, Churchwarden

Aurora Consort

Many thanks to everyone who supported the concert held in the Church on one of the coldest evenings in December. The candles were lit, the capes of the singers sparkled and their beautiful music filled the church. The evening was rounded off with a glass of 'Smoking Bishop mulled wine' and mince pies.

Thanks to the generosity of the audience, we have donated £100 to the Pear Tree Fund in Halesworth.

Hub News

Hello local residents, the trustees and team want to make sure the Hub is working for all of you. So, we're holding an important meeting on Monday, February 6th at 6:30pm (with a 7pm start). We want to hear from you about what activities, classes, and events you'd like to happen at the Hub. We've made it simple, fun and informal for you to share your preferences. This is your chance to shape the future of our community space, and it would be great to see you all there. Plus, Adnams have generously provided us with plenty of free bubbles, so here's to cheering up a dreary Monday in February!

Lots has been going on in the past couple of months, with Charlie and Madeleine joining the team in December. Everyone is working towards making the Hub a financially sustainable venue, which effectively serves the needs of our community.

One exciting development is the recent opening of our Warm Space. The team has worked hard to make this a welcoming and useful space for everyone. Located in the old meeting room, it's cosy, with a sofa and armchairs, as well as that all important kettle! Tea, coffee etc have been provided. There's a space for working/homework too, and free Wi-Fi. Open Weekdays 8:30am-8:30pm, and weekends 10am-8:30pm, all residents are encouraged to make use of this lovely facility.

In a few weeks we look forward to you joining us for FREE pancakes on Shrove Tuesday (Feb 21st). In collaboration with the Rural Coffee caravan, we invite everyone to come along anytime from 3:30-5pm. Kids will have the chance to practise their skills with a cool pan & pancake! Lemon and sugar will be provided but feel free to bring along your own favourite toppings.
